It climbs steeply on to the rocky ridge that gives the drive its name, offering spectacular views over the Reserve. The drive then winds through hills, descending into the Mirra Creek floodplain, and reaching the historic Mirra Weir, before turning back southwards. Passing by some interesting ruins near Kingston Dam, the route arrives back at the Witchelina Homestead precinct.

It then runs along the fence, parallel to the magnificent Termination Hill range, past a restored hut, and westwards into dune country.

At its southernmost point, it doubles back through the dunes, emerging on a plain to the south west of Termination Hill, and heads along the fringes of dune country. Following good summer and autumn rains, this country can offer spectacular wildflower displays during the mid to late winter and early spring. From the Black Hill Dam, the route climbs into low hills again, re-joining the main road approximately 7kms west of the homestead.

Bungarider Nature Drive

- Approximately 90kms round trip from Witchelina Homestead.
- Allow 5-6 hours. Access key available from Staff or Reserve Host Volunteers at Witchelina Homestead.

This drive passes through a variety of landscapes, mostly in the more remote parts of the Reserve towards Mount Nor'West, with outstanding geological features. It incorporates a short optional return walk (30 minutes each way), to a spectacular stone dam in the heart of the range. The route passes several sites illustrating Nature Foundation's conservation work and recalling the Witchelina's history as a sheep and cattle station. The drive proper starts just beyond the Witchelina dump, and ends nearly 60kms later, at a junction with the Farina-Mulgaria Road, approximately 32kms to the west of the Homestead.
